Guest Speaker 1950

RAYFORD W. LOGAN

Rayford W. Logan was born in Washington, D. C., January 7, 1897.

Received his B. A. degree from Williams College, 1917; his M. A. degree from Harvard University, 1932; and his Ph. D. from the same institution in 1936.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa, he was made Commander of the National Order of Honors, of Honor and Merit of the Republic of Haiti.

He is a member of the Advisory Committee of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs; and remained a number of years in Europe as Secretary-Adjutant of the Pan-American Association.

He has been head of the Department of History and Government of Virginia Union University from 1925-1939; and assistant to the editor of Journal of Negro History from 1933-1938.

A professor of History at Harvard University, he has headed the Department of History since 1942.

His writings include: Articles concerning the attitude of the Southern White press toward Negro suffrage — 1932-1940; Diplomatic Relations of the U. S. with Haiti; Operation of the Mundate System in Africa; and the Negro Post-War World in 1945.
